

By Alex Correa

Home office

Even with pandemic restrictions lifted, some people are still working from home. But, both company leaders and employees are divided about whether remote work will truly become business as usual.